DESPONDENT MAN COMMITS SUICIDE AT HOME IN COLMA

Tragedy entered the home of Hanz Rudolph Nilsen, in Colma, last Sunday for the second time within a year.

While Mrs. Edith Nilsen, the wife, was preparing dinner, she heard a shot in the bedroom. She went in and found Nilsen dead, lying across the bed, a pistol in one hand and a bullet wound in the head.

Mr. Nilsen had ended his own life in a moment of despondency. Mrs. Nilsen said that he had never ceased to mourn the loss of a stepdaughter, Geraldine Silicani, who was mysteriously stabbed to death a year ago.

Miss Silicani was returning home after a visit in San Francisco, when she was stabbed several times by a man near her home, death coming a week later as a result of the attack. Efforts to locate her assailant have been unavailing. A large reward was offered for the apprehension of her slayer, but no trace of the asasilant has ever been found.

There was nothing to explain the tragedy except his brooding over the death of the beautiful young girl, friends declared.

Dr. J. C. McGovern, coroner, presided Tuesday afternoon at the inquest, in the offices of Deputy Coroner Pepper. The decision of the jury was that Mr. Nilsen died of a self-inflicted gunshot wound.

In addition to his widow, Nilsen leaves three stepchildren, Raymond, Joseph and Mary Silicani. Relatives and friends declared Mr. Nilsen had "appeared worried" for many weeks, and that his health of late appeared to have been affected by his mental state.

NEW BUSINESS FIRM OPENS ITS DOORS

Last Monday the Home Investment Company, under the management of R. C. MacArthur, opened an office in Daly City, at 6301 Mission street, corner of Wellington avenue. The Home Investment Company will engage in the real estate and insurance business.

The building occupied by this latest addition to Daly City's business firms has but recently been remodeled and made into one of the most pleasing places of business in this section.

Last Monday morning, when Mr. MacArthur arrived at his new place of business, he was greeted by a number of his friends and well-wishers, and his office was soon turned into a bower of beauty with the presentation of many floral offerings, which almost entirely filled the rooms, gifts of his friends.

The indications are that the Home Investment Company, under Mr. MacArthur's management, is going to prove mighty popular in Daly City.

SUSTAINS BROKEN LEG WHEN STRUCK BY AUTO

Mrs. L. J. Unger, of Waller street, San Francisco, had the misfortune to strike little 8-year-old Irene Schwartz, of 6207 Mission street, while driving her Buick coupe on July 12. Mrs. Unger said as she drove up to the bank on San Jose avenue and Mission street, she saw no one, but all of a sudden the little girl ran from behind a Market Street Railway car which was standing on San Jose avenue and Bepler street. The impact of the car broke little Irene's right leg. Chief of Police Doyle arrived upon the scene of the accident and took the child to St. Luke's hosiptal.

DRUM CORPS MEETING HELD IN DALY CITY

Last Sunday Colma-Vista Grande drum corps was host to the California Field Music, composed of drum corps from the Fraternal Order of Eagles, the meeting being held in Eagles Hall. These drums corps are going to compete in San Francisco on August 14, following the Grand Aerie convention parade. The Aeries represented at the Daly City meeting were Sacramento, Oakland, Crockett, South San Francisco and the members of the Colma-Vista Grande Aerie.

Crocker Sewing Circle Meeting

The members of the Crocker P. T. A. sewing circle met at the home of Mrs. A. A. O'Neel, on Frankfort street, last Monday afternoon. At the end of a very pleasant and busy afternoon the members were served delicious refreshments by the hostess, assisted by Mrs. Cobb. Those present were Mrs. O. Pauw, Mrs. J. Jordan, Mrs. I. Alexander, Mrs. I. Reiman, Mrs. S. Millhauser, Mrs. H. C. Cobb, Mrs. G. I. Yates, Mrs. E. Bolger, Mrs. W. Grantham, Mrs. A. O'Neel, Jane Frances Reiman, Corinne Pauw.

COAST ROAD WORK FETE POSTPONED

Ground-breaking ceremonies set for next Sunday at Rockaway beach to mark beginning of construction on the first unit of the $6,000,000 San Francisco-Santa Cruz coast highway have been postponed, it was stated at the offices of the three-counties district commission in charge of the project.

The delay is due to demand for a bond by the Ocean Shore railroad, owners of a right of way over which the first unit will pass. The work is to begin at the San Pedro mountain grade and will shorten the distance from Half Moon Bay to San Francisco by about twelve miles. The bond was demanded pending final settlement of condemnation proceedings under which the state purposes to acquire the right of way.

COURT OF CATHOLIC DAUGHTERS FORMED

A new court of the Catholic Daughters of America was instituted on Sunday, July 13, in Daly City.

Mrs. May A. Maguire, organizer of the court, was honored at the affair and presented with a gift and flowers.

The degree team of Golden Gate Court, San Francisco, was in charge of the ritualistic work, and Mrs. Emma Ebertz, district deputy, installed the new officers as follows: Grand Regent, Mrs. Josephine T. Johnson; Vice Grand Regent, Mrs. Margaret Fields; Prophetess, Mrs. Lucy Fahey; Monitor, Miss Louise Segale; Sentinel, Miss Helen Nation; Financial Secretary, Miss Adele Raffo; Treasureer, Miss Collista Dalton; Historian, Mrs. Katherine Kost; Lecturer, Mrs. Marie Pilgrim; Organist, Mrs. Elizabeth Wettstein; Trustees, Mrs. Christine Michelsen, Mrs. Germaine Greene, Mrs. Mary Baker, Mrs. Alma Parmisano, Mrs. Helen Rode and Miss Julia Nation. Rev. Father James P. Donohoe, pastor of the church of Our Lady of Perpetual Help, Daly City, was appointed chaplain of the new court.

Catholic women leaders from all parts of the state were present to witness the ceremonies, among them being the State Grand Regent, Miss Esther R. Sullivan, of Marysville.

After the installation of officers, a splendid supper was served in the banquet hall to a large number of members of the order and guests.

Grand Knight Thomas J. Callan, of Daly City Council, Knights of Columbus, delivered a message of congratulations and best wishes from that organization. Other speakers were State Grand Regent Esther R. Sullivan, Fr. James P. Donohoe, Fr. Doyle, Organizer Mary A. Maguire, District Deputy Emma Ebertz, Mrs. Edna Young, District Deputy Elizabeth M. Finn of Burlingame and San Mateo, Grand Regents from many San Francisco courts, Palo Alto, Berkeley and other courts in the bay region. Letters and telegrams came from a number of courts throughout the state.

The new court presented the visiting grand officers and degree team with corsage bouquets of gardenias, while Mrs. Marie Pilgrim sang "The Rosary" in a most charming and impressive manner.

POPULAR DALY CITY BANK EMPLOYEE NOW A BENEDICT

Miss Rozella Valett Guiles, of North Dakota, became the bride of Richard J. Ennis last Saturday at 7:30 P. M., in Our Lady of Perpetual Help church. The bridesmaids were Miss Florence Pittes and Miss Edith Lewis. The best man was Horace Lewis, a cousin of the groom. The ushers were Wm. Bayn and Fred Erickson.

The wedding reception was held in the beautifully decorated home of the groom on Mission street. The color scheme was carried out in blue and gold. Showered with the best wishes and congratulations of their sixty guests, the bride and groom departed for a honeymoon tour of Southern California. They will make their home in Daly City.

MRS. ROMER ENTERTAINS

Mrs. Anna Romer, of Brunswick street, celebrated her birthday recently in quite a novel way. One group of ladies enjoyed luncheon with her, and the second group enjoyed cards and a delicious supper. The hostess thought that she was giving a surprise to her friends, but it was the other way. Mrs. Romer was as much surprised as any one, receiving many lovely gifts and good wishes. The home was beautifully decorated with flowers. About twenty ladies in all enjoyed the day. Mrs. Keller, mother of Mrs. Romer, assisted in receiving the guests.

Relief in Sight

TRAFFIC PROBLEM BEFORE COUNCIL

On Monday evening, July 14, a regular meeting of the City Council was held, all members being present except Councilman Twesten, Mayor H. H. Smith presiding.

City Clerk B. C. Ross being on his vacation, Councilman Sundermann acted as clerk.

A communication was received from the Board of Fire Commissioners, advising the Council of the resignation of R. Kramer, 168 Hillcrest Drive, and L. De Venceni, of Station No. 1. D. Wood and R. Melesky are now new members of Station No. 1.

Mayor Jensen, of Lawndale, sent a communication to the Council, calling attention to the dangerous intersection at Mission street and Hillcrest boulevard, where the Market Street Railway cars switch back. There is a stop marker on the pavement, where the cars should stop to clear the intersection, but many times this is disregarded by the carmen, it is charged. The condition was referred to the Chief of Police for investigation.

An ordinance amending the business license ordinance, No. 132, of the City of Daly City, was introduced.

The monthly report of Health Officer Dr. F. P. Callsen was read and ordered filed.

JUDGE ELLIS C. JOHNSON CELEBRATES HIS BIRTHDAY

No business was transacted in Judge Ellis C. Johnson's court last Wednesday, the Judge having decided to take a holiday in order to celebrate his birthday.

Bright and early Wednesday morning Judge Johnson left for Hollister, where a celebration had been planned in which the Judge and his niece Isabelle Breen were the honor guests, and from all reports the celebration was a distinct success. It is an annual custom for Judge Johnson and his niece to celebrate on July 16, their birthdays falling on that date.

And that's the real reason Judge Johnson's office was closed last Wednesday. His many friends hope he will celebrate many, many more birthdays.

EAGLE WELFARE COMMITTEE PREPARE FOR THEATRE PARTY

A committee of the members of Colma-Vista Grande Aeria No. 1848, F. O. E., met on Wednesday of last week at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. Merritt, on Bepler street. This committee met to discuss and make plans for the theatre party which is to be held on July 30.

A. J. Dalton, chairman of the program committee, announced that the programs for the theatre party will soon be ready for distribution at the homes of residents of Daly City and Colma.

W. Bolger, who has charge of the theater tickets, is anticipating a large attendance, and he advises those who wish to attend to come early.

The public is now pretty well informed through the medium of attractive posters placed in conspicuous places in local stores about the theatre party. These artistic posters are the work of C. Rodenburger, chairman of the advertising committee.

The funds to be derived from this event are to be placed in the Welfare fund.

The meeting adjourned at 10 P. M. to partake of delicious refreshments served by the hostess, Mrs. Merritt.

Those present included William Bolger, Fred Collins, B. G. Kost, A. J. Dalton, S. L. Harper, Charles Williamson, W. A. Geren, E. R. Trier, Lamar Johnson, William Merritt, Harry Warren, Herbert Harper, C. Wise, F. Greco, George Connolley.

MERCHANTS BEAT CREAMERY NINE

By HAROLD MARTIN

A strengthened, well balanced Daly City nine wasted only three of its fourteen hits last Sunday to defeat Del Monte Creamery, 11-9, on the Jackson Park diamond. This victory not only avenged a 5 to 0 defeat earlyin the season, but also established the local aggregation as one of the strongest in the city.

The new edition of the Merchants displayed in this game the essentials they needed to make a championship team, namely hitting power and fight. The change of atmosphere played a big part in bringing out these factors.

The hitting ability of some of the local batters that has been dormant for a long stretch was very much in evidence Sunday. Only three players failed to connect for safeties. The trio included Ahrens and Hawley, the team's most consistent hitters. Duke Cruchoff, the other hitless batter, was only one official time at bat. The honor of leading the nine was divided between Pat Sloan and "Mo" Plansky. They both garnered three for five.

Gene Keagle, Daly City's new pitcher, chucked good ball for seven innings, and was especially effective when the score was close. He was in no condition to go the full route after a three week lay-off, so when the possibility of defeat began to appear in the ninth frame, Al Toole was sent in to retire the side.

Manager Ed Cavagnaro used two other new players in this contest. Vincent Gorby covered the keystone sack territory, and Marcus Evenson replaced Hawley in left field. Both young men made a fine impression. You will probably hear more of them in the future.

The Merchants completed two double plays Sunday, bringing the total to twelve for the season. The first twin killing, Rettig to Gorby to Sloan, was started in the initial frame; and the second, Gorby to Rettig to Sloan, came in the fifth stanza.

If Daly City gets the brand of pitching Managaer Cavagnaro expects in the future, there is no reason for the local nine being defeated by any present city team. Watch their smoke from now on.

The box score and lineup follows:

Del Monte Creamery	AB.	R.	H.
McNicoll, cf	4	2	2

Daly City will have another chance for revenge Sunday when they play O'Brien, Sportono & Mitchell on one of the San Francisco diamonds. The poultrymen hold a 4 to 3 decision over the local nine. The contest should be a thriller. Don't miss it.

SAN CARLOS BANK ROBBER CAPTURED

A charge of first degree robbery has been filed against John Keilly, who was identified at the Alameda county jail by Horace Laughlin, former San Carlos bank teller, as one of the two men who robbed the bank last February after binding Laughlin and placing him in a vault.

Keilly, held for alleged complicity in an Oakland bank robbery and sought for the past five months by Police Chief Ed J. Wheeler, San Carlos, Sheriff James J. McGrath, and Chief Deputy E. J. Farrell, admitted the San Carlos holdup, according to Chief Wheeler. Keilly said the loot amounted to $4,200, and that it had been largely spent in gambling.

Keilly is reported to have chatted with Laughlin about the robbery, after the teller had signed an affidavit of identification.

Keilly was identified as the man who walked behind the counter, roped the bank teller, and then lifted the cash from the counter and from the drawer. Officers declared they are close on the trail of the man who assisted Keilly and who held a gun on Laughlin while Keilly picked up the cash and herded the teller into the vault. Keilly declined to name his pal, and gave evasive answers as to where he had been since the San Carlos robbery.

Keilly is held at the county jail in Oakland for alleged complicity in a robbery of the American Trust Company, Oakland, last October. Albert Da Costa, alleged accomplice of Keilly in the Oakland robbery, is serving a life term for the crime. Keilly, implicated in a story told by Da Costa, according to police, escaped as officers were about to arrest him. The pair tunneled through the wall of an adjoining building and held up the employes of the bank as they arrived in the morning, it is charged.

POPULAR DANCER BECOMES BRIDE OF SAN FRANCISCAN

Miss Betty Kraus, popular daughter of Mrs. D. Kraus, of Irvington street, better known as "Betty Blossom," became the bride of Elmer Hansen, of Geary street, San Francisco, on July 4. Miss Blossom is well known by those who have seen her perform at the El Capitan Theatre. The wedding supper and reception was held in a hall on Green street, over one hundred and fifty guests being present. All present wished the bride and the lucky man of her choice a happy and prosperous journey on the sea of matrimony.

CLINIC EXECUTIVE BOARD MEMBERS LUNCHEON GUESTS

Mrs. F. Watson, of Evergreen avenue, and Mrs. W. L. Lewis, of Bellevue avenue, entertained as their luncheon guests the members of the Well Baby Clinic executive board, last Tuesday in the Daly City Theatre building. A most delightful luncheon was served by the two charming hostesses. The remainder of the afternoon was spent playing whist.

Those who were present were: Mrs. G. I. Woodside, Mrs. Ivy Alexander, Mrs. J. Jordan, Mrs. M. Chesney, Mrs. O. Pauw, Mrs. Ethel Bolger, Mrs. R. L. Lewis, Mrs. Rose Watson.

SLAYER OF JACK BURKE FACES MURDER CHARGE

Trial of Antone Anderson, fisherman of Crockett, on a charge of murder, was recommended by a coroner's jury in San Francisco last Tuesday, following an inquest in the death of Jack Burke, Daly City, killed by Anderson in a gun duel on the bay near South San Francisco, last April, when Allan Curry, deputy game warden, also was slain.

The recommendation was made in the face of a finding of the jury that Anderson fired in self defense. The verdict said that because of incompleteness of evidence, Anderson should be tried to determine if he was guilty of intentional slaying.

SURPRISE SHOWER

Miss Rose Hoyle was the hostess at a surprise shower given in honor of Miss Annette Lucey, of Brunswick street, at the home of Mrs. Arthur Martell, of Alameda, on Saturday, July 12. A delicious luncheon was served the guests, after which they enjoyed an afternoon of bridge. The bride to be was the recipient of many lovely gifts. Those present included Mesdames E. Loefler W. F. McGouirk, A, Martell, C. Tebout, A. Ginbach, B. Hoyle, W. Beard; Misses Rose Hoyle, Mary Harrott, Lena Cancilla, Wilford De Kay, Martha Durham, Helen Christensen, Alice Deuffy, Mabel Mitchell, Margy Stoff, Helen Gough, and Annette Lucey.

WILL BEGIN WORK ON HOSPITAL WING

As a result of the action of the San Mateo county board of supervisors last Monday, construction of the new wing at the Community hospital will begin at once. The board of supervisors awarded four contracts for the building. Bids for elevator equipment and plumbing were held over for two weeks, pending further investigation by Will H. Toepke, of San Mateo, architect.

On a plea of William J. Logue, Jr., of San Mateo, secretary of the Plumbers' union, the plumbing award was held up. He asked that the second lowest bid, submitted by Frank J. Klimm, be accepted because the latter would employ 50 per cent of his mechanics from this county.

Supervisor Thomas J. Hickey, of South San Francisco, objected to awarding Klimm the contract for his bid of $20,116, because it was higher than that of the Scott Company. Its figure was $19,904. Toepke then offered to interview the members of the Scott Company, asking them to employ local labor.

The two lowest bids for elevator equipment was also held up by Topke. He asked further time for investigation of the companies, the Pacific Elevator and Equipment Company, whose bid was $6,530, and the Spencer Elevator Company, whose bid was $5,975.

Contracts awarded were: Wiring, Atlas Electric Company, of San Mateo, $10,049; plumbing, George Ames, of Burlingame, $3,890; heating, Frank J. Klimm, $14,741; general contract, Sorenson & Haggemark, $83,900.

That construction would begin imwediately was disclosed when Toepke said that an inspection of construction would be required by August 1. Stanley Schaller, of Atherton, was appointed inspector. Frank L. Schultz, of San Mateo, and Walter Scott, of Burlingame, were the remaining applicants for the position.

Residents of La Honda petitioned that the La Honda road be repaired and that dangerous curves four miles west of the Skyline boulevard be eliminated. Previously County Surveyor George Kneese had reported a survey made of the Woodruff Creek road. This road is three miles long and would provide another entrance to the La Honda road. The project would cost $84,000.

Supervisors stated that no new road work could be started this year, because the budget only provided for construction of the new wing at the Community hospital. However, they ordered Surveyor Kneese to make a survey.

Menlo Park fire district asked that $17,250 be awarded it for the next year. The request was referred to Auditor Ed. Stack.

John J. Garlad, county milk inspector, was granted permission to leave the state.

An appropriation of $1,500 was given the state department of agriculture for control of predatory animals in this county.

WAS AN UNLUCKY DAY FOR THESE MOTORISTS

July 13 proved an unlucky day for at least two motorists. On the evening of the 13th, in front of the New San Francisco Auto Camp, two cars collided. J. A. McCarthy, of Forty-fourth street, San Diego, driving a Cadillac coach, turned into the auto camp, and in doing so his car struck a Ford roadster driven by Lorenzo Tuccori, who was going north on Mission street. Tuccori received lacerations about the face as a result of the collision.

ROYAL NEIGHBORS ENTERTAIN

Mrs. Maude Appleton, of Lowell street, entertained the Royal Nieghbors of Vista Grande Camp, Daly City, on Tuesday evening. There were three tables of guests who enjoyed whist, and refreshments were served by the hostess and her two daughters. At the supper table tales of Daly City twenty years ago were enjoyed by those who were pioneers of our famous little big town. A most pleasant evening was enjoyed by all.

GUEST AT BIRTHDAY DINNER

A birthday dinner was given on Thursday evening of last week by Mrs. R. Anderson, of Risel street, in honor of her sister, Mrs. Peggy Hickey. The table was artistically decorated, the color scheme being carried out in green. Mrs. Hickey received many lovely gifts. The guests included Mrs. Peggy Hickey, Mr. and Mrs. R. Anderson, Miss Doris Maloney, Mr. J. Maloney, Mr. Victor Barskey, Mr. Edgar Elliot, Marjorie and Irene Anderson, Jack and Betty Hickey.

INTERNATIONAL HIGHWAY ROUTE BEING CHARTED

Prospects are bright for the development of the Canadian-border-to-Alaska portion of the projected International Pacific highway, according to reports received by the California State Automobile Association, which has endorsed and is co-operating in plans for this project.

This proposed longest highway in the world would link existing routes in California, Oregon and Washington and in British Columbia with a new road north to Fairbanks and south through Mexico and Central America along the Pacific slope into South America.

A caravan to the present northernmost point on the road at Hazelton, British Columbia, including officials of Canada and the United States and representatives of automobile organizations, has just traversed the trail that will some day lure thousands of tourists.

Attention of the motoring public as well as of government authorities of the United States and Canada has been focused on the possibility of a highway through northern British Columbia to Alaska as a prime result of the international caravan which is now returning from the jaunt to Hazelton, which is approximately one thousand miles north of Seattle. Some 800 miles of highway will have to be constructed from Hazelton to the existing highways in Alaska.

Opening of such a route would be of inestimable value to both the United States and Canada, it is declared. For the Canadians it would open a vast undeveloped area having rich mineral, timber and fur resources. For Americans it would provide a land route to Alaska.

Coincident with the blazing of the trail from Hazelton northward comes the news that the United States government is opening a field office in Panama to co-operate with the governments of the Central American countries in making surveys to determine the most desirable route for the proposed highway southerly.

The Argentine Republic, the furthermost south of the countries interested, has provided the initial appropriation for a road across the Andes from Buenos Aires to Santiago, Chile, the southermost point of the great highway that eventually will extend from Alaska through Pacific Coast provinces, states and nations, down the west coast of South America.

CONVICTS ONLY ALLOWED SIGN-LANGUAGE AT MEALS

One finger for bread. Two for water. Four for coffee. The monotonous simplicity of a sign-language is the only expression permitted the prisoners during their meals at the Hutchinson, Kansas, reformatory.

Describing prison routine, an unpleasant but occasional interlude in a gangster's life, a racketeer, writing under the name of Roy Chadwick, declares in the Liberty Magazine: "At first they had to kick me out of the dining room for breaking the rule of silence. After that I learned the finger signals used in asking for things at the table. One finger up means bread. Two means water. Four fingers are coffee. Shaking all the fingers like playing the piano calls for salt and pepper. The whole hand brings the guard.

"Hutchinson reformatory has four cell blocks. As your conduct improves you are transferred from Block D to C to B to A. In A you have a few privileges, and what strikes me is the sight of a lot of tough hoodlums you couldn't control with a machine gun outside, behaving like school kids in the hope of enjoying the little freedom they'll get in the first cell block. All in all, the Hutchinson reformatory is not a bad place. A prisoner who actually wants to go straight has all the chances in the world to do so."

ODDS AND ENDS OF WEEK'S NEWS

Fire destroyed a three-story building at Ione last Monday, doing damage estimated at $20,000. The structure was occupied by a bank and a hotel.

Arnt Fotland, 22, Arbuckle ranch worker, was drowned Sunday afternoon while swimming with a party of friends in the Sacramento river near Grimes. He was caught by a treacherous undercurrent and swept beneath the water before the others could reach him.

A heavy toll of fatalities was exacted in California during the week end, eleven violent deaths occurring, six being the result of automobile accidents.

San Mateo county assesment figures for 1930-31, released by County Assessor Daniel Flynn, bear further testimony that real estate conditions in the county are holding up to a comparatively high level. Every city in the county and every township with the exception of one were given increased assessments, bringing the total increase for the county well over two million.

Atherton police are attempting to trace two alleged auto thieves who abandoned a small coupe on the railroad tracks at Atherton, where it was demolished by a train. The car was locked at the time and the men were attempting to push it across the tracks before forcing the doors, it is believed.

The City Council of San Carlos has voted to eliminate city taxes on doctors, dentists and jewelers, and also reduced taxes on several local firms.

San Carlos has sold its culvert bonds, the Anglo London Paris National Bank purchasing the bonds on a bid of 4½ per cent plus $5 premium.

Grape production in California will total about 2,078,000 tons this year, an increase of 191,000 tons over the 1929 crop, according to the annual crop prediction of E. E. Kaufman, federal-state agricultural statistician.

A forest fire lookout station on Mt. Harkness, at an elevation of 8000 feet, in Lassen National forest, is nearly completed. A meterological and seismological station is to be located on the mountain.

Earl Lee, student at the University of California, was killed when he fell beneath a truck at Walnut Grove, when he attempted to retrieve his sweater.

Vincent Lucich's chances to escape prison for the murder of M. G. Sturtevant has been dimmed by the denial of Superior Judge Butler of Lucich's motion for a new trial.

The Commission has authorized the major rail lines in California to assess higher freight charges for shorter hauls than for longer hauls over the same line or route. The authority covers a situation where the rail lines serving common points absorb each other's switching charges to equalize the freight rates via all lines.

Joseph Raspadori, Burlingame, an employee of the Pacific Gas and Electric Company, was fined $35 by Justice of the Peace Edward Farrell of South San Francisco. He had pleading guilty to a charge of overloading a truck.

The historic Widney block, Santa Clara, housing the meeting place of Santa Clara organizations, was destroyed last Sunday by fire that for a time threatened a large section of the business district.

Two Napa schools will be heated by natural gas, according to a decision made by the board of trustees.

VICTORY IS EXPECTED FOR TRANS-COUNTY HIGHWAY

Victory for the San Joaquin to the Sea highway is expected to be announced at a meeting of tthe highway committee of the state chamber of commerce to be held in tthe William Taylor hotel, San Francisco, this Friday morning.

The meeting is a regular monthly gathering. One of its first acts is expected to be the announcement of its report on secondary highways to be included in the state highway system. This report is expected to favor making the San Mateo to Half Moon Bay road a part of the state system with a consequent realignment, widening and straightening which would make it one of the most important roads in the county.

Frank Stellick, San Francisco house mover, faces a charge of manslaughter as a result of a free-for-all fight last Saturday night at Rockaway beach which resulted in the death of Elmer Fitzpatrick, Oakland mechanic. Fitzpatrick died Sunday in a San Francisco hospital from the result of blows struck by Stellick, who used a steel bar.

HEALTH BOARD SAYS HANDS OFF MUSSELS

Mussels along the San Mateo county ocean shore line are to be left strictly alone for the present, if people know what is good for them.

This is the fiat of the State Board of Health, which has placed a quarantine on the district due to the fact that mussels in the area are poisonous at this sason.

Health officers and food inspectors have been ordered to keep a close watch and enforce the ban.

CANDIDATE'S REMOVAL LEAVES H. A. PARKMAN A CLEAR FIELD

Oscar F. Weissgerber, formerly city manager of San Mateo, who has been a resident of that city for six years, has left for San Diego, where he will engage in the crushed rock business. This means that he will not be a candidate for assemblyman from San Mateo county. Weissgerber filed as a candidate some time ago, before his present plans had matured. His withdrawal will leave the field clear for Harry A. Parkman, incumbent.

PENSION ACT AIDS DISABLED VETERANS

State officials of the American Legion are now engaged in securing the names of all World war veterans who are eligible to pension benefits under the recently enacted pension law by the federal government.

State Adjutant James K. Fisk calls attention in the following statement to the benefits under the act:

"The new law enacted by Congress provides a pension for every veteran who served in the World war for a period of ninety days or more, and who is now permanently disabled to the extent of 25 per cent or more according to Veterans' Bureau standards and whose disability is not the result of misconduct, regardless of whether or not the disability is service connected.

"The claim when allowed will date from the date of application.

"The Bureau will accept a letter requesting form for application as the date of application. The veteran should write today, making application for 'any and all benefits to which I may be entitled under the Pension Act passed July 3, 1930,'—giving full name, address, rank, organization, serial number, date and place of enlistment and discharge, and claim number, if any has been made previously.

"All claims that have been disallowed as not service connected will become claims under the new law. A new application must be filed at once.

"Write the Veterans' Bureau office in your territory for Form 526-C, but do not wait! Have every disabled veteran write to the Veterans' Bureau today, and then follow that with the application on the prescribed form."

GIRL RESERVES WINNERS OF FRESHMAN SCHOLARSHIPS

Two San Francisco girls who have been members of the Girl Reserves of the Y. W. C. A. since grade school days will enter college this fall on freshman scholarship, according to an announcement made by Miss Velma O. Cochran, Girl Reserve executive of San Francisco. The scholarships were awarded for character, proficiency in high school studies and a desire to attend college.

Miss Norma Harrison is the winner of the Dorothy Todd Memorial Scholarship at the University of California. Miss Maki Ishiyasu has been awarded the freshman scholarship at Mills College.

The Dorothy Todd scholarship fund was started in 1921 as a memorial to Miss Dorothy Todd, a San Francisco Girl Reserve, who died during her freshman year at the University of California. The fund is raised annually by the Girl Reserve Clubs of the Pacific Coast, and girls of that region are eligible for the award, which is designed to help students through their freshman year. The Mills College award is one of several given freshmen.

Both Miss Harrison and Miss Ichiyasu have registered at their respective colleges, and are planning courses leading to group work with younger girls.

WESTERN PACIFIC WILL SOON ASK FOR BIDS

The Western Pacific railroad will call for bids within two weeks for the construction of its share of the new Western Pacific-Great Northern extension between Keddie and Klamath Falls, it was announced last Tuesday. The Western Pacific will build from Keddie to Bieber at a cost of approximately $10,000,000.

PLAN TO ELIMINATE ALL GRADE CROSSINGS LAUNCHED

Plans to launch a move that will eventually bring the elimination of all grade crossings in San Mateo were announced last Tuesday by Supervisor Thomas L. Hickey of South San Francisco. Hickey cited the closing of the Millbrae crossing as a costly source of inconvenience to residents of North Burlingame and Millbrae and that he was heartily in favor of an overpass at this place.

THE CREED OF THE CAREFUL MOTORIST

The Creed of the Careful Motorist, as reported to the public safety department of the California State Automobile Association, is as follows:

I will drive my car as though "half the world was deaf, dumb and blind," and their safety in my keeping.

I will keep my car under control at all times so as to be able to meet any emergency that may arise.

I will keep uppermost in mind the rights and privileges of other drivers and pedestrians, and observe the Golden Rule.

I will slow down at crossings, intersections, and schools, and other places where care and caution must be used.

I will never pass slower-going vehicles on the brow of hills, around curves, or at crossings.

I will signal when about to stop, or make a turn out of the traffic line and watch for signals of the cars ahead.

I will adapt my driving to weather and road conditions and be on guard against rain, slippery roads, ruts, obstruction and traffic jams.

I will obey all traffic and parking regulations.

I will make sure the road behind me is clear before backing up, and will give proper signals before pulling away from the curb.

I will practice courtesy at all times.

FEDERAL OFFICIALS AFTER SIGN VANDALS

More drastic punishment for roadside and trail sign mutilators is being given serious consideration by civic authorities. This malicious and useless destruction of road markers has aroused the indignation of the Federal government, which recently made surveys in the national forests. It was found that in one forest within two years after being erected, 89 per cent of the signs had been mutilated.

The Califorina State Automobile Association, official road-signing agency for Northern and Central California, has been waging constant warfare against sign mutilators. It now offers a standing reward of $25 for the arrest and conviction of any person who is found guilty of defacing highway signs.

It is pointed out that this form of misdemeanor is one that can not possibly do the perpetrator any good, but it results in expense and discomforts to many others, and often creates a hazard when warning signs are defaced or destroyed.

Miss Laura Ingalls made 980 consecutive loops in an airplane at Muskogee, Oklahoma, in three hours and five minutes, breaking her own world's record for women. She is also an accomplished musician.

THE STORY

Renewing a childhood attachment, Ernestine Briceland, of a wealthy family, is attracted by Will Todd, newspaper artist.

He looked down at her, the light from the drawing room window streaming on to his face, and Ernestine paused, surprised. She was filled with an inward dismay for she had never seen him like this. His face, usually complacent, was keen now, his blue eyes were brilliant sparks, his whole countenance quickened and fired. His voice, when he spoke again, had a barely perceptible quaver.

"Why were you running, Ernestine? You're still a kid half the time. When I heard you running, I knew it was you, because my heart began to run, too."

"Nonsense," said Ernestine briskly, but he was persistent.

"I was just going away, disappointed that I hadn't seen you, and here I have you alone for a moment at last. I've been wanting to tell you how beautiful you are, since you're grown. Where have you been? Your face is shining. I could see it luminous in the dark street. Ernestine—don't be silly. I'm trying to tell you I care for you—I—"

She pulled away from him with determination.

"You're the silly one," she said impatiently. "And dumb, as well." She passed him quickly, and closed the door behind her, shutting out his handsome, desirous face.

In her room, dressing for dinner, she was furious with him for intruding on the enchantment of her hour with Will. Didn't he know that he had made himself conspicuous, all last year, with his attentions to Lillian? He was not her lover. What was the matter with him?

Lillian came in from her room, which adjoined Ernestine's, and the younger sister looked at the elder one with old but ever-fresh admiration.

"Loring was kidding me," she told herself. "Of course he's crazy about Lillian."

Lillian was ash blond, and very lovely. Her eyes were a kind of deep violet, serene calm eyes, and her lips were thin and bright red, beautifully cut. Her nose was patrician, her skin a clear milky white, and she wore just enough rouge to give her a faint rose color and make her eyes more lovely. The two girls plunged at once into the conversation of sisters, without beginning or end.

"I've been to the matinee with Sadie and Juel. Sadie's seen Delancey's show ten times. She's as crazy as she can be. Imagine falling in love with an actor. She's written him letters and letters. But he won't see her."

"She is kind of old for that line," said Ernestine, perched on the edge of her bed, a silk stocking in her hands. "I saw Will Todd today."

"Will Todd? Who is he?"

Ernestine reminded her, and Lillian admitted that she remembered.

"He's charming," Ernestine said. "I thought I'd ask mamma to invite him here for tea some afternoon, or for dinner, some night when he doesn't work."

Lillian stared, then laughed. "If you want to see him again, if you want an affair with him, don't tell mamma," she advised Ernestine, "or that will be the end of it. A little lame boy about the house one summer is quite a different matter from an attractive grown man. Mamma will make him miserable."

Ernestine considered this. "I don't see why," she said stubbornly.

"Certainly you see, darling," said Lillian. "We are not to have any irregular affairs now. We are to marry."

"Well," said Ernestine, "what of it? You can't marry unless you're asked. I can be friends with Will without marrying him, can't I?"

"I doubt it," said Lillian calmly. "You always go to such extremes, Ernestine. You are always blundering around, taking such awful chances and making wild friends. You've been spoiled and have had your way about lots of things. But this is one thing you can't have."

Ernestine pooh-poohed Lillian, but felt at the same time that she would say nothing about Will just now.

"Beth's going to be married. She's going to marry Johnnie Allison."

"I'm not surprised, are you?" asked Ernestine, thinking of Will's gestures—the way he moved his hands continually.

"No, I'm not surprised. It's just what she wanted. One ought to know what one wants. I do. We talked about it today."

"I can tell you what you want without talking to you about it," said Ernestine with sisterly decision. "You want a house in Hubbard Woods, or else one of those big co-operatively owned apartments on the drive, near downtown. And you want a limousine, and a rich handsome husband. You've got it all planned out."

"In detail," agreed Lillian, unperturbed. "Pretty much as you named it. I want Loring, for myself—"

"Why don't you ask him?" exploded Ernestine, her feelings a confusion of resentment that Lillian had showed her the fallacy of her own dream, of hurt for her sister, that Loring should have been such a fool, of scorn for these plotters.

"I probably won't need to," Lillian answered, and went on, before Ernestine could interrupt her again: "If not Loring, then somebody much like him. I merely mentioned him as an example. After I've been married a few years, I want a son, and if I get along nicely, I wouldn't mind a daughter. I want everything right. A man who is already a member of good clubs, so that the money he makes will take us in the right direction, and we won't have to stand and wait. All right, go on and hoot. I know what I want, anyhow, and that's more than you know." She looked at Ernestine with some severity, and added darkly: "What's more, I'll get it. Watch me."

Ernestine could see Lillian as she had planned it all out. A correct house, a correct husband, perhaps even a correct baby or two. The same old business over and over, with correct people coming and going and Loring stalking handsomely about.

Not for her. She knew what she wanted. She wanted love! She wanted something not mentioned on Lillian's list. She wanted passionate, romantic love. She wanted adventure, an inevitable great adventure.

Suddenly she stood trembling, her heart beating with great strong strokes. She was terrified with the intensity of her feeling, with the vivid, almost material picture of Will Todd's violent personality before her. One person, one in all the world, and never anybody else. She wanted love, and all her wakening instincts warned her that she had found it.

CHAPTER II

The Lady Promises

Again and again Ernestine resolved to tell mamma all about Will, but again and again her confidences faltered before mamma's bright energy, before mamma's staccato bossiness. It was really her first secret from her family, and she did not feel right about it. Of course she was old enough to have a friend if she wanted one, a friend of her own choosing, but Lillian's attitude that she was having an "affair," a romance on the side, purely for the thrill of it, dismayed her. Yet she couldn't tell mamma, and an incident occurred which sealed her silence.

She had called Will on the telephone the next morning after her encounter with him on the street, and that had been the beginning of an absorbing intimacy. He worked in the afternoon and at night six days a week. He had nothing better to do with his forenoons and his luncheon hour than share them with Ernestine. But the very time of these engagements made Ernestine safe from curiosity. It was a time of day exclusively the property of women in mamma's world. It would never have occurred to mamma that a love affair could have proceeded during a succession of forenoons.

And a love affair was what it rapidly became. Ernestine could not prolong the time with Will enough to suit her, and his eagerness soon matched, then outrode, her own. His enthusiasm, his energy were compelling, and Ernestine felt the rousing and stirring of her own personality in touch with his. Within a week she was desperately in love. She had no room for any thought and feeling but those which concerned Will Todd. Presently she realized that the termination of their friendship would be a true catastrophe, and with this realization she began to practice secrecy with skill and determination.

One blowy, gusty Sunday morning in December she had escaped church and met him and talked, hand in hand, as they always talked, quickly, starvedly.

Eventually a little silence fell between them, and in its magic, without speaking a word, they turned and kissed each other, and smiled a little dimly and leaned together. The touch of lips, and then the pressure of cheek to cheek was magic. His arms slipped about her, and for a long, long time they sat in a swing of joy.

There was no word spoken, no promise, but Ernestine knew now that she must tell mamma. The family was home from church when she reached the house, sitting in the big living room, all of them engrossed in gossip. Mamma looked at Ernestine sharply.

"Why didn't you come to church?"

"I went for a walk," evaded Ernestine, and her face flamed with color, for they all looked at her, and she felt that Will's love-making was visible upon her. Mamma said no more, however, and Lillian turned to her with the news.

"You remember I told you Sadie Hall was in love with the actor, Lon Delancey?" Ernestine nodded, and Lillian said with some satisfaction, "Well, she finally succeeded in meeting him, and they were married last night. Every one was talking about it in church this morning."

"Well, what of it?" said Ernestine. "She can marry him, can't she?"

"Ernestine!" said her father sternly. "You know it isn't suitable." He was a big man, a little too stout, with a handsome florid face. His brown eyes were warm and kind, but his big nose was acquisitive, his mouth stern and hard, a man of brilliant mind, but limited by prejudices.

"It is her money he wants," said papa, "and nothing else. The girl's a fool, and was not brought up properly, or she would never have done such a thing."

Loring put in his oar. He was always there on Sundays, thought Ernestine, who was tired of having him around.

"Any man who urges a girl to keep her love affair a secret from her folks is a blackguard, and a girl may as well realize it first as last. No real man would do such a thing. He would be honorable." He looked at her when he said it, with such meaning that Ernestine felt a faint dismay.

"But how ridiculous," she exclaimed "You all know, every one of you, that if she had told her folks of her infatuation, they would have carried her off to Europe, or had him forced out of town. They would have separated them instantly."

"But that's why she ought to tell her people," said papa. "No girl can trust her own judgment, when she gets out of her own class. Her people know best, and she should confide in them."

All this while mamma had been watching Ernestine. Mamma was so pretty, with her violet eyes, and smooth fair hair, and her slender vigorous body. But mamma was sharp.

"Neither of my girls would do such a thing," she said now in her soft quick voice, but with a meaning that Ernestine and Lillian both sensed. "I am sure that neither of my little girls would do such a thing to me—have a secret love affair. Would either of you?"

"Don't be nutty, mamma," advised Lillian, and Ernestine was silent.

Later, alone, Lillian turned to Ernestine eagerly.

"You'd better come across. I think the folks are on to you."

"You haven't told them?"

"Of course not," said Lillian impatiently. "It's your own business. But, Ernestine, you aren't really going to fall in love with him, are you? Papa would be furious."

Ernestine shook the bright tears from her eyes and smiled at Lillian. After a moment, Lillian went on uncertainly.

"Loring saw you yesterday morning. He asked me who the young man was, and I told him, but asked him not to mention it. Still he may tell. He's awfully fond of you, Ernestine. He's always telling me that you are just like a little sister to him. He might feel it his duty to tell papa about you and Will."

"But there's nothing about Will that anybody could object to," protested Ernestine. "I'm not engaged to him, but if I should become engaged, I don't see who could care. He's fine and good and gentle. He's brave, too, a real man."

Lillian shook her head.

"It's your funeral," she said, with the heartless laissez-faire of her generation, which feared, above all things, that it might become its brother's keeper. "But you know just how papa would react to Will Todd. He's the son of papa's old carpenter. He's poor, and he hasn't been to school, and he's not very strong—there's nothing but objections to such an idea, Ernestine. Anyhow, I can't see why you could let yourself even think of such a thing as getting engaged. Imagine taking a chance like that!"

* * * * * * * *

Will said nothing about marriage. He was full of talk, overflowing with his own vitality, enraptured with Ernestine's beauty and dearness. One day, however, when they had gone for their usual walk north along the lake shore, he seemed oddly silent and thoughtful, and at times he looked at her, as though wondering whether to speak his mind or not. When he left her, he kissed her again and again, and said oddly, "Remember me," as though it were farewell.

"I'll see you tomorrow," she whispered to him, and turned her fur collar up against the wind.

But she did not see him the next day, although she waited at their rendezvous for an hour past the time. Nor the next day. By the third day she was filled with deep dismay and fear. All sorts of questions whirled through her mind. Perhaps he had tired of her. It might be that the affair had run out for him, that he had never intended to make more than a sweetheart out of her.

But she had only to think of his bright honorable face to know that there was some other reason behind his attitude. She had only to think of his eager kisses to know that he cared. She called him on the telephone at his home, at ten o'clock. His mother answered and said, in a low voice, that he was sleeping.

"Would you waken him. It's important," she said, and stood shaking in the telephone booth, until she heard his voice, husky with sleep.

"This is Ernestine," she said, trembling.

At once there was an electric silence, and then he said, in a voice now thoroughly awake:

"Well?"

She could have cried. "What's the matter, Will? Aren't you going to see me again?"

"Where are you?"

"I'll be there within an hour," he told her.

He had not had breakfast, he said, shaking hands with her formally when they met. They went into a little white tiled coffee shop, and he ordered his breakfast and sat opposite her in silent waiting. He looked terrible. His face, often white, was ravaged, and his eyes burned. But he was calm. He had reached some decision, and Ernestine knew that the initiative rested on her.

"What's the matter, Will?" she asked him, trembling again, and hating herself for it. It was awful to be such a slave.

"Your mother phoned me yesterday."

"Mamma!"

"Sure—she asked me to come there to tea this afternoon. I told her I had to work. Didn't you know she was going to ask me? I thought perhaps you told her to invite me," said Will.

A little light dawned in Ernestine's mind.

"Is that the trouble?" she asked. "Do you think I ought to have invited you to my home?"

"Well," he said slowly, "why shouldn't you—unless you were ashamed of me?"

How could she explain without wounding him?

"But you see, Will—it has nothing to do with being ashamed. My first thought was to tell the folks, but then, it seemed they might disapprove of our friendship, and I want to keep it. And then—"

"But don't you see, Ernestine, I can't meet you any more, like this—out on the street, and in the library, and in restaurants and tearooms? I can't do that to your parents. If they don't want you to go with me, I can't coax you to do it—clandestinely."

"Your mother's been telling you all this."

"Yes," he said. "I confided in her. She showed me how it looks."

"Well, then, that's all there is to it. You aren't willing to make the effort to be friends that I am. You don't understand how they'd be. They'd be so nice and so reasonable—and they'd separate us. Just as sure as fate. You don't know them as I do. It wouldn't be your character they'd object to, or your folks. It would be your position and your lack of money and such things. Anyhow, it seems to be a little late to—to—" she faltered into silence.

Will looked at her with agitation.

"What do you mean—it's late, Ernestine?" he demanded.

But she could only look at him. If he did not understand, she could not explain.

"You mean—you care?" he asked a little breathlessly, and she smiled tremulously.

"What did you think?" she asked him.

"I didn't think, I guess," he said. "I never meant to make you love me—it was so natural. I shouldn't have touched you."

"But you did, Will."

"Let's go," he said, and paid the bill.

They walked out, swept now into a unity which had been increased, not broken, by their talk. They walked a half mile or so and came to a deserted boathouse, where they sat down side by side upon an upturned rowboat.

"You see, Ernestine," he told her solemnly, "we just kind of jumped into it all. But it's real with me. It's love—and marriage, with me. I never thought much about such things—just took you at what you were willing to give. Everybody has dates out around town, and I didn't want to go to your house especially, nor think about that. And then, we got to caring—and as soon as I began to think about you as my wife, I began to think about all these other things: your money, your family position, and the darned Briceland pride that I know more about than you do. And then, I wondered why you never took me home. And finally I talked to my mother. And I made up my mind to quit."

"Without even giving me a chance?" she asked him.

She was in his arms now, and he said to her:

"Will you marry me, Ernestine?"

"Of course. Today, if you like."

"You'll have to tell your folks first," he insisted.

"Oh, Will," she cried. "Don't stand with them against me. They'll separate us. Why do you suppose they asked you to the house today, if not to find out about you and how intimate our friendship had become, and to begin the business of breaking it up? I know." She told him what papa said about Sadie Hall and the actor Delancey. His arms grew slack about her. He sat a little away, now, distraught, silent.

Monarch and Minister Both Soldiers at Heart

I have said that Louis was military; from the childhood when he ranged little toy silver regiments and harnessed toy guns to dogs, to the last great day before Perpignan. I have said that Richelieu was essentially a commander. Well, the two men having this one capital national quality in common, though very differently exercised in each, were linked by it. They were both, at heart, soldiers.

Louis XIII would never have made a good general officer; Richelieu would not only have made one of the best general officers in history, but did in practice act as a general officer of the highest talent; and if he had been called emperor instead of cardinal, the whole world would see it.

Louis XIII could never have swept over a mass of detail with his eye, choosing the exact instant in which to plant the blow, to fall on the defensive, or to retire, organize, and triumph through organization. He could not ever have handled great numbers of men.

Richelieu had all those qualities. But both men differing so vastly in the degree of their military talent, were military to the core, and therein is found the true point of contact between them.—From "Richelieu," by Hilaire Belloc.

Unidentified

Buddy has two older brothers, and, of course, picks up many of their choice expressions. The other day the three-year-old remarked: "Mamma, you're a big fool!" "Indeed, I'm not," replied his mother, and promptly spanked him. "Then daddy's a big fool," insisted the youngster. "No he's not," returned his mother, and spanked him again. Then through his tears Buddy had his final say-so: "Well, somebody's a big fool."

Not as Bad as It Sounds

If you heard a West Point cadet say casually, "I saw a beast come out of the boodler's with his drag, all spooned up, and start on a P. S. with a skag in his face," it would mean simply this: "A young cadet, leaving the cadet restaurant with the girl he is to take to a hop."

You must understand that the girl is adequately togged out for the dance and that the cadet, smoking a cigarette, was taking her for a stroll before starting for the hop. A "hop" is a dance, of course.

Country Boy's Advantage

Insurance statistics show that the life expectancy of a boy who lives in the country is seven years greater than that of the city boy.

CALIFORNIA NEWS REVIEW

Supervisor George A. Cole announced that Humboldt County's new public swimming pool at Clam Beach on the Redwood highway, twenty-five miles north of Eureka, has been opened. The new pool, which is a few hundred yards from the ocean, is 100 feet long and 60 feet wide.

Machinery is about to supplant the woman manicurist. This appeared with the filing of incorporation papers by the National Manicuring Machine Sales Company Ltd., a Los Angeles concern, to engage in the manufacture and sale of manicuring machines. Capitalization is set at $20,000.

Rejection of a bond issue of $450,000 to provide funds to repair the Sacramento filtration plant was recorded in Superior Court with the completion of a recount suit filed by the Chamber of Commerce. The bonds failed to gain the necessary two-thirds by fourteen votes.

The largest court filing fee ever collected in the county clerk's office at Redding was received when $72 was paid by Attorney L. C. Smith in filing the answers of the seventy-one defendants to the action of the Big Cow Creek Ditch Company. The company seeks to collect old claims against the defendants.

The passage of the constitutional amendment No. 21 would give Solano County in the state tax refunds nearly $46,000 a year. Solano County has been requested to contribute $189 to the fund to promote passage of the amendment, and other counties will donate to the fund on a pro-rata basis.

The Board of Supervisors of Colusa County sold the remaining $36,000 of highway bonds for a premium of $203 to Alfred J. Davis of Sycamore. Following the sale of the bond issue, bids were opened for the construction of the four miles of county highway between Mills Orchard and Sites.

Professor Herschel C. Parker, explorer, writer, and formerly a member of the Columbia University faculty, announced plans to erect a plant on the Pacific Coast to extract gold, silver and other metals from ocean water. He estimated 25,000 tons of water that could be treated daily would yield $500 worth of gold.

Somewhere in the Yuba County foothills are the army papers of Captain Charles Kingsford-Smith, only man to cross both the Atlantic and Pacific oceans by airplane. One hot night in 1922 Kingsford-Smith and Edward von Geldern took to the aid to cool off. Von Geldern held the stick while Kingsford Smith climbed out on a wing. His army papers fell out of his coat pocket and fell to the ground. The two fliers spent days hunting the documents without success. Kingsford-Smith was in Marysville with two other fliers in 1922 with contracts to chase ducks off of rice fields with airplanes. During the season two of their machines were wrecked.

Bids for the second and major portion of the work on Stockton's deep water channel to the sea were called for by Major J. R. D. Matheson, United States district engineer. The specifications call for construction of levees and embankments from Mormon channel, Stockton, to a point near Venice Island, a distance of 22 miles. Operations of the deeper water channel will be divided into three ports, the first of which started at Pittsburg in April. The second unit will be the principal operation of the project. The third portion will consist of 22 miles of suction dredger work to remove shoals. Actual construction will start 25 days after the awarding of the contract. Bids will be opened August 26.

Steps toward the acquisition of five new state park areas, involving expenditure of $400,000 of state park bond funds and a similar amount from Sonoma, Riverside and San Diego counties, have been taken by the state park commission, Fred G. Stevenot, director of natural resources, announced. The Painted Canyon area in Riverside County, near Mecca, was declared suitable for state park purposes, and the commission appropriated $50,000 as one-half of the necessary funds. In regard to the Bodega Bay project, the commission declared the Sonoma County coast line from the Estero Americano up to and including the mouth of the Russian River was suitable for a park, and steps were taken to secure options and raise funds to match the state's money. Joy Woods was eliminated from primary consideration in the project. The commission also decided to co-operate with San Diego County in the acquisition of the Silver Strand, Borego Valley and Palomar Mountain state park sites.

The new Strawberry grade around Slippery Ford, forty miles east of Placerville is open to automobile traffic following dedication ceremonies participated in by hundreds of motorists from California and Nevada. The new grade is four miles long, providing a high-gear road around what was formerly a difficult stretch of the Lincoln highway through the Sierra.

The Senate passed a bill authorizing the city of Napa, Cal., to purchase public lands for protection of its water supply.

OUR SCHOOLS

There are many parents in Daly City whose only contact with their children's school is the child itself. Perhaps they have never even set foot inside of the school that trains their child.

We need an awakening of public conscience in this community toward our schools. We need a greater co-operation betweenthe parents in Daly City and our teachers. A greater co-operation between school and home means the training of a finer group of future citizens.

National leaders are agreed that the education of our youth has become almost our largest and certainly our most important activity. Each year has found an increasing interest on the part of the citizens of this country in education. This is evidenced by the fact that although the population of the nation has increased approximately 8 per cent during the past nine years, we have witnessed a 14 per cent increase in the number of children in our grade schools and a 70 per cent increase in the number in our high schools. In a period of less than ten years we have expanded our educational system from an outlay of twelve hundred million dollars to twenty-seven hundred million dollars.

In spite of this tremendous growth in school attendance and investment, many educators tell us that the adult population of this country are not taking the active interest in educational matters that the importance of the subject deserves.

This week's community campaign deals with this important factor in community life—the school. It presents some figures that are worthy of study. Equality of opportunity is the right of every child in Daly City, and every adult, whether a parent or not, should be interested in educational matters, for the way our young people are trained determines the citizens they are to be.

BASTILLE DAY JULY 14

In France the 14th of July, the anniversary of the fall of the Bastille, is celebrated in much the same manner as the 4th of July is observed in the United States.

The fortification, afterwards a prison, known as the Bastille, was originally the gate of Saint Antoine of the wall surrounding Paris, this gate being flanked by two towers, but the structure was enlarged in 1368 into a massive fortification, surrounded by a ditch 25 feet wide.

From that time until the French Revolution the Bastille was the scene of numerous spirited battles during several civil wars. At an early date it became a prison for political adversaries of the faction in power. It was at times crowded with both men and women prisoners and many tales of cruelty inflicted upon the unfortunate inmates were current.

The outbreak of the French Revolution was marked by the storming of the Bastille by the French mob, which captured and razed it to the ground on July 4, 1789. Strangely enough there were only seven prisoners found within its walls at the time of its capture.

The site is now called the Place de la Bastille, and is marked by a lofty column of bronze, surmounted by a gilded figure of Mercury spreading his wings as in flight. The historic spot is viewed with interest by visitors to Paris.

Although France was to pass through the Reign of Terror, the regime of Napoleon, and the alternating of republic and empire before the establishment of the Third Republic (the present) in 1871, the fall of the Bastille is considered tthe real beginning of French liberty and popular government.

Therefore July 14 is celebrated as the great national holiday of France.

Little Michel of Rumania will probably not mind being demoted from king to grand vivode, so long as his allowance of ice cream cones is not cut.

DR. HARVEY W. WILEY

In the death of Dr. Harvey W. Wiley in Washington a few days ago at the age of 85, the world lost one of its most distinguished chemists and health advocates. Among tthe manifold activities of a useful life, he served as chief chemist of tthe Department of Agriculture for nearly 30 years, retiring from that office in 1912.

To give the merest outline of Dr. Wiley's accomplishments as teacher, scientist, organizer, author, executive and humanitarian would fill a page. He held important offices in a score of scientific societies, both at home and abroad; he was the author of numerous books, newspaper and magazine articles, and no less than 60 government bulletins and 225 scientific papers.

Perhaps his most important and lasting contribution to the health and welfare of his countrymen was his determined fight for the pure food and drug law, enacted in 1906.

An intersting fact in connection with his life is that he married in 1911, at the age of 66, and became the father of two sons. Only a few days before his death he testified before the Senate Agricultural committee in an investigation of the administration of the pure food laws, and this effort so weakened him that he took to his bed, from which he never arose.

Dr. Wiley was frequently the center of controversy and was at times severely critized, but he was indefatigable and undoubtedly sincere in his labors for the betterment of humanity. Those labors should be held in grateful remembrance by the nation.

IN CHICAGO

When the Chicago Tribune's star police reporter, Alfred (Jake) Lingle, was shot down and instantly killed by a gunman in a crowded thoroughfare recently, that newspaper was joined by other papers of the city in offering a reward of $55,000 for apprehension of the slayer.

It was considered that Lingle's murder was a challenge to the press, because of its warfare against gangdom. The righteous indignation felt by the Tribune and other newspapers is readily understood.

But later investigation has revealed a different situation. It has been conclusively shown that Lingle had used his position as reporter for a reputable newspaper to cloak his participation in the spoils of gangland. Although his salary was only $65 a week, he had made large deposits in cash regularly at a certain bank, had borrowed unusual sums from politicians and shady characters, and had indulged in extensive gambling operations connected with the underworld.

The Tribune has set forth these findings with candor, saying editorially that the investigation "would indicate Lingle was killed because he was using the Tribune position to profit from criminal operations. Lingle now takes a different character, one in which he was unknown to the management of the Tribune when he was alive."

Chicago is a great city, with perhaps as many estimable people in proportion to its population as any other great city. But its criminal minority has brought an unusual degree of shame upon the whole body of its citizens. For the sake of the predominant decent element of Chicagoans it is hoped that soon some strong leader may arise who can redeem tthe city from the terrorism of gangdom.

TO STOP WAR PROFITS

Ever since the World War the idea has been advanced that one of the most effective means of preventing war would be to make it impossible for anyone to make personal profits out of the exigencies of war.

It is notorious that in every war of the past many persons have been profiteers, enriching themselves while brave soldiers and sailors served for a pittance, yielding up their lives or suffering from privations and sustaining personal lossess in defense of their country.

Upon the initiative of the American Legion a joint resolution has been passed by Congress and signed by the President which provides for a commission to study the problem of taking the profits out of war.

The idea is that if able-bodied citizens must suffer loss and risk their lives in the national defence, capital and industry must also be pressed into service without hope of any profit whatsoever. A man rejected for military service for physical defects could not go into a munitions plant at $15 to $30 a day, working only eight hours, while his able-bodied brother served in trenches day and night for $30 a month as happened in the late war.

It is to be hoped that the new commission authorized by the recent act will be able to evolve a plan whereby these glaring injustices of the past will be abolished for all time.

By the use of electricity, two crops of wheat a year are being grown experimentally in greenhouses by the Canadian government, to speed the development of new varieties.

WOMEN MORE THRIFTY

The American housewife has always been a shrewd buyer, but during the nation-wide slump in business and unemployment her natural thrift has been practiced to an even greater extent than usual. Inasmuch as about ninety per cent of all purchases for the home are made by women, manufacturers and dealers have long sought to appeal to the housewives of the country through advertising and otherwise.

Buying habits of women have been given intensive study by home economists during the present depression, and the report of a recent survey among 3,000 home-makers showed some interesting trends. It says in part:

"There is an increasing tendency to economize through personally doing a number of tasks in the home which were formerly done by outside agencies or by servants. This has been made possible by the employment of labor-saving devices or products, which enable a woman to do most of her housework without assistance. It is also observed that wives are displaying better management in the purchase and preparation of food. It was found, for example, that a majority of the women included in the survey buy special cake flours and bake their own cakes at home, while many other economies are effected through the more careful planning of meals so as to eliminate waste."

There is little doubt that the average housewife is more thrifty than her husband, setting an example in this respect which he might well follow more closely. Through intelligent teamwork in the home much can be done to lessen the perplexities of the present economic situation and hasten its improvement.

POLITICS IN BUSINESS

If anyone in the United States is able to speak with authority concerning the effects of government or political operation of business enterprises Edward N. Hurley should be able so to speak.

Mr. Hurley was chairman of the United States Shipping Board and president of the Emergency Fleet Corporation during and for some time after the World War. In a recent address on "Government and Business," he said:

"The efficiency of the shipbuilding industry was, at most conservative estimate, 25 per cent less after the government became responsible for wages. At least one-half billion dollars could have been saved in the building of ships under private administration with the same managers and men on the payroll."

In the course of his address he referred to the well established fact that when business enterprises are conducted by the government any losses are made good by the public in the form of taxation. The managers play politics to hold their jobs, while in private enterprise they must show results in order to be kept in their positions.

Yet a certain school of politicians advocate government operation of this and that, for the purpose of creating more political jobs for an army of parasites who could not survive in the rough and tumble of free competition, in which merit and real efficiency determines success.

A FARMER'S INVESTMENTS

Like any other business man the farmer should conduct his operations with a view to realizing a profit from his investments, whether they be in land, implements, animals, or what not.

This is brought to mind by a recent agricultural bulletin which relates the experience of certain southern cotton farmers, covering 1,007 tests of fertilized crops grown alongside of those not fertilized.

These tests were scientifically conducted and accurate records of results were kept. It was found that the application of an average of 180 pounds of Chilean nitrate per acre increased the yield of cotton to an extent that added $23 per acre in net profits. Figured another way, for every dollar expended for this quick-acting fertilizer an increased crop value of $5.70 was obtained.

The same principle applies to many other phases of farm management. In the long run there is increased profit in tthe use of labor-saving machinery, in the raising of pure-bred livestock and poultry, in expenditures for the preservation of buildings and equipment; in fact, in every means whereby any expenditure can be made to yield profitable returns.

Intelligently invested, "money makes money" in agricultural as well as in industry.

DESTROYING OUR FORESTS

In a period of ten years, between 1916 and 1925, an average of 51,021 forest fires occurred each year, entailing an annual destruction of property value of $20,994,916. It requires 40 to 100 years for a tree to reach maturity. Yet, by fire, whole forests can be totally destroyed in a few hours.

Great fires, wiping out all timber over broad areas cause the extinction of wild life, radical changes in climate and damage to agriculture. The state and national governments do everything in their power to prevent such catastrophes. But they can not be successful without public co-operation.

Tourists, by carelessness with tobacco, matches and camp fires, are leading offenders. Some of the worst forest conflagrations in our history have occurred when camping parties moved on without completely extinguishing their fires.

It should be our patriotic duty to help protect and conserve our great forests.

A TREMENDOUS INDUSTRY

All of us take as a matter of course the telephone facilities that make it possible for us to talk to the person next door or someone in another country. But probably few realize the magnitude of the organization that has brought the world closer together through the medium of the spoken word.

There are over twenty million telephones in this country, and nine million more in foreign countries that can be interconnected. Every day in the year eighty million telephone conversations take place in the United States. The work of hundreds of thousands of people is necessary to the maintenance of this service.

The record of the telephone industry is outstanding in our industrial history.

THE LAW PROTECTS DOGS AGAINST HIT-RUN DRIVERS

If a motorist in California injures a dog along the highway, the driver is required by law to stop. Recently a driver failed to stop and a conviction for his offense was upheld on an appeal, according to the legal department of the California State Automobile Association.

The California statute requires a driver to stop after causing damage to persons or property, and this held applicable in a case where a motorist struck and injured a dog.

The lawyer's best friend is the fellow who thinks he can make out his own will.

CHARGED WITH STARTING FIRE

Charles Caruso, a rancher of the Colma district, is said to have been the man sought by County Fire Warden Bert Werder in connection with a brush fire on the Robert Chase ranch near Colma. Caruso is said to have set fire to a hedge of cypress trees on the ranch, but he was not arrested. The rancher was warned against the burning of brush without a permit, by the fire warden.

HOLDUP SUSPECT IS CAUGHT IN FRESNO

Traced through a licence plate number taken by a suspicious motorist, Clyde Lawson is under arrest in Fresno, suspected of being one of the two men who held up William Yount and a party of friends on Thursday night of last week. He was returned to Redwood City by Deputy Sheriff Thomas Maloney and Chief of Police Irwin Hansen of Belmont. In jail at Fresno, Lawson had repeatedly denied participation in the Belmont holdup. He admitted, however, that he was engaged in running liquor from San Francisco to Fresno, according to authorities. Several gin bottle labels were found in his automobile.

Two armed men disguised with smoked glasses held up Mr. and Mrs. Yount and Mrs. James Healy, of South San Francisco, at the Yount home. They entered through the rear door and obtained a small sum of money and jewelry.

Martha Hull, 2 years old, of Billings, Mont., had a nickel lodged in her throat for three days until it was removed by an operation from which she is recovering.

GRASS FIRE ON RANCH CALLS OUT FIREMEN

Search is being made for a man alleged to have started a fire Sunday night on the Robert Chase ranch, half a mile south of Colma, which spread over four acres and gave the local fire department a bad three hours, threatening buildings on the ranch.

The blaze roared through heavy brush and threatened to destroy a barn, according to Constable S. A. Landini, of Colma, who answered a call for aid.

Heavy traffic along the San Pedro coast road prevented firemen from reaching the scene until the blaze had reached serious proportions. The county fire warden was petitioned by nearby ranchers to investigate the cause of the blaze and to arrest those responsible.

Although no great danmage was done, owners of nearby property were thrown into a panic and demanded that action be taken by Werder.

YOU CAN PASTE THIS IN YOUR SCRAP BOOK

"My feeling is that our business, taking the counrty as a whole, is much better than our business psychology," says Martin J. Insull, president of the Middle West Utilities Company. "I think comparisons with 1928 would prove the former, and our comparisons with 1929 cause the latter. We seem to forget that 1929 was a year of the greatest business the country ever knew, and far above a normal basis. It reached its peak about the middle of the year. So far this year, therefore, we have been comparing with a rising curve. From now on it will be different and our business psychology should improve.

"The fact seems to be that fluctuations, whether booms or depressions, are not so important in the long run as they appear close at hand. The trend of business activity and prosperity is gradually higher every year and this is more significant than the short-term changes."

EXPECTS THAT SUNNYVALE WILL BE AIRSHIP BASE

Confident that Congress will choose Sunnyvale as the Naval Airship base of the Pacific Coast, H. W. Crozier, consulting engineer of the San Francisco Chamber of Commerce, has returned to San Francisco from Washington, D. C.

Crozier prepared hundreds of reports and statistics, which were presented at the naval hearing, on the merits of Sunnyvale and San Francisco Bay district as tthe logical location for for the naval base on the Pacific Coast.

"I am confident our case was so well prepared that there is no doubt the House Naval Affairs Committee was impressed with San Francisco's importance as a naval base. Our fight will continue until December, when Congress settles the matter one way or another.

"We prepared a moving picture showing how San Francisco Bay, Skyline boulevard and Sunnyvale are natural fortifications.

"In case of war the bay is the only place where battleships would be protected. Skyline boulevard makes it possible for the Army to move their guns along the coast to prevent invasion of enemy ships or aircraft," the local engineer said.

Crozier said the moving pictures passed all expectations in fully sum passed all expectations in fully summing the case in logical order.

HALF MOON GAY FIRE CAUSES LOSS $150,000

Fire that for a time threatened to wipe out the town of Half Moon Bay early Tuesday levelled the Half Moon Bay Mercantile building and scorched adjoining buildings, with a loss that will amount to nearly $150,000. Only valiant work on the part of the town's volunteer fire organization saved the community from wholesale disaster.

Residents along the main street of the town were awakened at about 3:30 o'clock by a series of explosions. James Gianocca looked across the street and saw the big store owned by John E. Francis and John Miramonte ablaze. He immediately sounded an alarm. The explosions were found to be the bursting of shotgun shells in the store from the heat of the fire.

No one has yet established how the blaze began, but when discovered it had made great headway. Investigation showed that it started inside the store. When firemen arrived the store was a mass of flames and Captain Frank Fetter decided to devote their efforts to adjoining property.

So intense were the flames that the Occidental hotel, 60 feet across the street, was badly scorched. Every window in the front of the hotel was broken by the intense heat. Guests of the hotel, scantily clad, fled in terror from their homes, but firemen prevented the hotel from catching afire.

Mrs. Alice Roosevelt Longsworth, wife of Speaker Longsworth, is known as one of the keenest political observers in Washington. She recently upheld her reputation for astuteness by winning $20 from Senator Allen of Kansas. She bet that Senator Reed of Pennsylvania would vote for the tariff bill—and he did.

Wedding rehearsals are common; funeral rehearsals unusual. But Joseph Sandlin, of Lebanon, Indiana, had precise ideas of how he wanted to be put away, and had his lodge brethren gather for practice, he occupying a coffin. That was twenty-four years ago. A few days ago the ritual was carried out as he had directed, with Mr. Sandlin in the role of a real corpse, he having died at the age of 90.

Justice Morschauser of Middletown, N. Y., believes in giving erring youth a second chance. To Milton Young, 16, who confessed to taking a neighbor's automobile, the Justice said: "I won't make a thief of you. Promise to return to high school and graduate in two years. If tempted again, think of a fat-faced man on the bench who has a reformatory sentence awaiting for you."

El Camagueyano, a newspaper of Cameguey, Cuba, crusaded against the national lottery, which it characterized as a public fraud. Not practicing their own preaching, the editorial staff bought a lottery ticket, won part of the capital prize, and collected the money.

A collie dog worthy of being immortalized in an Albert Payson Terhune story is Queen, owned by C. C. Glenn, a dairyman of Decatur, Ala. When Glenn was attacked by a bull and trampled under the enraged animal's hoofs, his cries for help brought Queen to the rescue. She set upon the bull, tearing him with her fangs until he beat a retreat. Glenn was painfuly bruised, and would no doubt have been killed but for the prompt action of the faithful dog.

NOTICE OF TRUSTEES' SALE

WHEREAS, on the 2nd day of May, 1929, Alice A. Whiteside, formerly Alice A. Ranenburg, and A. M. Whiteside, her husband, made their certain deed of trust to R. L. Husted and W. G. McDiarmid, as trustees, to secure the payment of Four Thousand Five Hundred ($4,500.00) Dollars, to Mission Building and Loan Association, a corporation, and which said deed of trust was recorded on May 3, 1929, in the office of the Recorder of the County of San Mateo, State of California, in Liber 415, of Official Records, at page 120; and

WHEREAS, Mission Building and Loan Association, a corporation, beneficary under said deed of trust, on the 17th day of March, 1930, recorded a notice of breach and election to sell under said deed of trust, in Liber 456 of Official Records, at page 476 thereof, in the office of the Recorder of the County of San Mateo, State of California; and

WHEREAS, the said Mission Building and Loan Association, a corporation, has made demand upon the undersigned R. L. Husted and W. G. McDiarmid, under the power and authority conferred upon them as trustees under said deed of trust, to sell the real property therein and hereinafter described, to satisfy said indebtedness;

NOW, THEREFORE, in accordance with the terms and conditions and under the authority of said deed of trust, and in pursuance with the demand, above referred to, by Mission Building and Loan Association, the holder of a certain promissory note made by Alice A. Whiteside, formerly Alice A. Ranenburg, and A. M. Whiteside, her husband, to secure the payment of which said promissory note said deed of trust was given, declaring that default in the payment of interest and principal and interest on said promissory note had been made, and that the whole of said note has thereby become due and has not been paid, and requesting the said R. L. Husted and W. G. McDiarmid, as trustees, and under the power and authority conferred on them by said deed of trust, to sell said real property described in said deed of trust, and hereinafter described, to satisfy said indebtedness, said R. L. Husted and W. G. McDiarmid do hereby give notice that on Tuesday, the 29th day of July, 1930, at the hour of 12 o'clock M. of said day, at the office of the Daly City Record, at 6500 Mission Street, Daly City, San Mateo County, California, they will sell, at public auction, to the highest bidder for cash, in lawful money of the United States, all that certain real property situated in the County of San Mateo, State of California, particularly described as follows, to-wit:

The Westerly 13 feet more or less frontage of Lot 23 and the Easterly 15 feet frontage of Lot 24 in Block lettered "T" as shown on that certain map entitled "Map Showing Subdivision of the Property of the Mission St. Land Co. situate in San Francisco and San Mateo Co.'s, Cal.", filed in the office of the County Recorder of San Mateo County July 31, 1895, in Book "E" of Original Maps at page 73, and copied into Book 2 of Maps at page 73, being described as follows:

BEGINNING at a point on the northerly line of Bepler Street distant 410 feet easterly along said street from the easterly line of Rhine Street and said point of beginning being the easterly boundary of that parcel of land described in deed from Homestead Realty Co. to Terence Colloty and wife, dated December 10, 1915, and recorded December 15, 1915, in Book 243 of Deeds, at page 453; thence from said point of beginning easterly along Bepler Street 28 feet more or less to the tract known as Hillcrest; thence northerly along said tract parallel with Rhine Street 100 feet to the dividing line between Lots 22 and 23; thence westerly along said dividing line and the dividing line between Lots 21 and 24 parallel with Bepler Street 28 feet more or less to the said easterly boundary of the parcel of land first hereinabove referred to as described in Book 243 of Deeds at page 453; thence southerly along said boundary parallel with Rhine Street 100 feet to the point of beginning.

NOTICE OF TRUSTEE'S SALE

On Monday, the 28th day of July, 1930, at 12:00 o'clock noon, at No. 3 Brumiss Terrace, partly in San Francisco, and partly in Daly City, San Mateo County, California, Northern Counties Title Insurance Company, a Corporation, Trustee, will sell at public auction to the highest bidder in cash, lawful money of the United States, the following described real property, situated partly in the City and County of San Francisco, State of California, and partly within the County of San Mateo, State of California, and bounded and described as follows, to-wit:

BEGINNING at a point which is distant Southeasterly 214 feet and 4-3/8 inches from the Southeasterly line of Mission Street as widened, measured at right angle thereto and distant Northeasterly 153 feet from the Northeasterly line of Acton Street, measured at right angle thereto; running thence Southeasterly parallel with the Northeasterly line of Acton Street 88 feet 7-5/8 inches to the most Westerly corner of lands conveyed by Alexander Warner and wife to Mitchel Mignacco by deed dated April 6th, 1904, and recorded April 9th, 1904, in Book 108 of Deeds at page 360; thence at a right angle Northeasterly and along the Northwesterly boundary of lands so conveyed to Mignacco, 25 feet to the Northeasterly line of Lot 13, as shown on the Map hereinafter referred to; thence at a right angle Northwesterly and along said Northeasterly boundary of Lot 13, 88 feet 6 inches; thence Southwesterly 25 feet, more or less, to the point of beginning.

BEING a portion of Lot numbered 13 as shown on that certain Map entitled "Map of the Property of the West End Homestead Association," filed in the office of the County Recorder of San Mateo County, January 25th, 1865, in Book 4 of Deeds at page 415.

Said sale will be made to satisfy the obligation secured by a certain deed of trust executed by Harry A. Watkins and Grace L. Watkins, his wife, to Northern Counties Title Insurance Company, a Corporation, as trustee for the benefit and security of W. W. Jeffers and George W. Newsom, dated April 18, 1928, and recorded in the office of the County Recorder of the City and County of San Francisco, State of California, on the 8th day of September, 1928, in Volume 1728 Official Records at page 85, and also recorded in the office of the County Recorder of San Mateo County, State of California, on the 13th day of September, 1928, in Volume 401 Official Records at page 28.

Notice of breach of said obligation and election to sell said real property was recorded in the offices of the County Recorder of the City and County of San Francisco, and the County of San Mateo, State of California, on the 18th day of March, 1930, and on the 1st day of April, 1930, respectively.

This notice is given in compliance with the demand heretofore made on the trustee by Leo W. Goldstone, assignee of the beneficiaries.

Dated: San Francisco, California, July 1st, 1930.

SCHOOL DAYS

SCHOOL DAYS! What a wealth of memory and charm those simple words hold for most of us!

The most valuable and cherished days in one's life are school days. They are not only the days in which the fundamentals of knowledge are acquired, but they are also the days in which character, habits and personality are moulded and shaped.

Our homes exert the greatest influence over our boys and girls, but the next greatest influence that determines the type of future citizens of our community is the School.

It is most unfortunate that a nation-wide survey of our United States shows that there are far too many children and youths who are not enjoying the school days that should be such an important part of their early lives.

School attendance is a Community problem, because schools are far and away the chief community enterprise. There is, on an average, as much invested in school property as there is in all other public property combined. The schools should be the best administered phase of our civic life.

The average community spends over $100 each year on every child attending school and is devoting $200 worth of school property per pupil. However, the average Community does not rate high on its schools because it seldom has much in the way of Vocational education. Still more often it has little or nothing in the way of Evening Schools. The system of grade and high schools of the average community usually rates but 75% of standard.

It is important in our progress as a community that our schools be above average—that they train our boys and girls efficiently—that they properly equip them to meet the trials and opportunities of life. Our aim should be:

1. Modern school buildings, equipment and recreational facilities.
2. A school year that covers nine months of the year.
3. Efficient teachers who are well paid.
4. All children of school age attending school regularly.
5. All of our children graduating from grade and high school.
6. A higher education, or special vocational education, for all those whose future duties will require special training.

Only a limited number of men and women in our town give our school system proper attention. Responsibility lies on the shoulders of a mere few. As our chief community enterprise, our schools deserve the thought and attention of everyone.

School Days! For memories' sake and for our children, any goal less than the "best in the world" for our schools should be too low for

WANTED

Rangers of the United States forest service want but little here below, but there are a few things, especially during the vacation season in the national forests, that they want very badly. Here are some of them:

Matches that use their heads when their owners don't.

Cigarettes without a forest fire in a trainload.

Cigars that go out when dropped.

Empty cans that automatically roll themselves into garbage pits.

Newspapers that decompose when left lying around.

Signs that rebound the bullets at vandal shooters.

Campers who always extinguish their camp fires with water.

Motorists who carry ash receivers in their cars and use them.

Hunters who only shoot after they see horns.

Fishermen who never clean their catch in a stream or lake.

Tourists without a mania for writing their names on sign boards.

Nature lovers who do not destroy the flowers, shrubs and trees.

Good citizens who realize their responsibility to prevent forest fires.—U. S. Forest Service.

BOYS AND GIRLS

Ruth Slenczynski, 5-year-old pianist of Philadelphia, won a musical scholarship through a recital given recently, with the famed pianist, Josef Hofmann, as judge.

Lois Allen, 15, a war orphan of Eaton Rapids, Mich., pinned the first 1930 "buddy poppy" on President Hoover's coat.

Minnie Lee Marcum, 15, of Huntsville, Ala., will receive a gold medal for saving the life of her younger sister by carrying her several miles to safety after they had been lost in a snowstorm in which their mother and another sister perished.

Sumiko Tokudo, Kimi Ashino, Yoshika Matsudaira and Yoshika Sato, four Japanese school girls, will come to the United States to thank the American people for aid given their country after the Tokyo earthquake of 1923.

Jean Little, 6-year-old girl of tthe Republic of Colombia, who is now visiting in New York, speaks English, French and Spanish with fluency.

Kimball Young, 9, son of Clyde T. Brown of the Chicago Daily News staff, was chosen as the "typical American boy" by G. Cirpriani, Italian sculptor, who made a statuette of the lad for the Chicago Institute.

Helene Madison, a Seattle school girl, made three women's world's swimming records in three day at Miami Beach, setting new marks in the 500-yard, 220-yard and 110-meter events.

Although Robert Wadlow, of Racine, Wis., is only 10 years old, he is 6 feet 10 inches tall and weighs 250 pounds.

Jean Rogers, 11-year-old girl of Utica, N. Y., caught in her arms a baby falling from a second story window. Both tumbled onto the sidewalk but neither was hurt.

Doris Shalit, 16, of Quincy, Mass., will soon receive her license as an airplane pilot.

Marvin Pierce, school boy of Wymore, Neb., has rigged up an alarm clock to turn on the family radio at any time for which it may be set.

Dannie Houston, 5, of Bessemer, Ala., ran for help in time to save her 6-year-old playmate who had fallen into a water hole and was unconscious when rescued.

Lily Pearl Dempsey, 5, of Anniston, Ala., is recovering after the removal of a whistle from a toy balloon which she had sucked into her lung.

Lucius Moran, 10-year-old Oklahoma boy, saved his little cousin, Calibee Faster, from death when the wheels of her toy wagon caught in a railroad track.

Stella Willins, of Brooklyn, won the national students' typewriting championship, averaging 116 words a minute for half an hour.

Margaret Jowitt, 2 years old, traveled alone from Manitoba to Liverpool after the death of her mother.

A 15-year-old girl saved 13 lives without assistance from a flood in the Kamenitsa valley near Belgrade.

Margaret Temple, of Tonbridge, Eng., has had a novel accepted for publication at the age of 12.

John Tyrrell, 8, of Springfield, Mass., has three pet foxes which he has named Amos, Andy and Kingfish.

Pauline Lodge, high school girl of Lakewood, O., is this year's winner of the Gorgas memorial essay prize of $500 and a free trip to Washington, where her check was presented to her by President Hoover.

Peggy Duncan, 15, swam a difficult channel off Cape Town, South Africa, a feat accomplished by only one man, her time in the water being 9 hours and 32 minutes.

Paul Gray, 16, of Washington, was found to have his heart on the right side and all his internal organs reversed, the discovery being made when he was operated on for appendicitis.

Dorothy Brown, 15, of Kamloops, B. C., received a Carnegie bronze hero medal for saving Mrs. Ida McNeil from drowning.

Alberta Shearon, 15, of Marked Tree, Ark., who has led her class during her entire school career, has won six scholarship and music medals, besides other honors.

RED CROSS CHAPTERS TO ASSIST VETERANS IN FILING OF CLAIMS

All honorably discharged veterans of the World war who believe themselves entitled to the "disability allowance" provided by the World war veterans act as amended July 3, 1930, may file their claims through the nearest Red Cross chapter, according to an announcement received from Pacific branch headquarters in San Francisco. The first supply of application blanks has been hurriedly distributed to the 300 chapters in the Pacific Coast states in order that this service to veterans may begin without delay.

Many hundreds of veterans will be eligible to the new benefits. The act as amended provides a monthly allowance ranging from $12 to $40, according to the degree of disability, to honorably discharged veterans of the World war who served more than 90 days and who are suffering from a 25 per cent or greater permanent disability not acquired in service and for which compensation has not been paid. No payment of this allowance shall be made prior to July 3, 1930, and no veteran shall be entitled to it unless he has been exempt from payment of a Federal income tax for one year preceding the filing of his application. No veteran can receive both compensation and disability allowance during the same period.

Any veteran wishing to file claim must be sure to bring with him his honorable discharge or a certified copy of the same, the Red Cross states.

SAN MATEO STANDS SECOND IN GROWTH AMONG COUNTIES

A Sacramento dispatch announces that San Mato county stands second among California counties in population gain, according to the official 1930 census, with 77,135 persons in the county, an increase of 109.7 per cent over 1920 census figures.

California now has a total of 5,648,938 inhabitants present census figures show, compared with 3,426,861 in 1920.

Los Angeles county heads the list in population gain, but northern California counties have showed substantial increase, with San Mateo county in second place, and close behind Los Angeles county for first place honors.

GOLDEN GATE BRIDGE WILL COST $30,000,000

One of the most important links in the highway system of the West will be constructed within five years if present plans mature. It is the proposed bridge across the Golden Gate in San Francisco which will join San Francisco and Marin counties and will provide a short, ferry-free link on the road from Mexico to Canada by way of the coast route.

Motorists can travel from Mexico through San Diego, then along the coast route to San Francisco, cross the bridge to the Redwood highway, then north to Crescent City, then to Grant's Pass, and the Pacific highway to Canada.

The proposed bridge will cost $30,000,000 and will be publicly owned and operated.

Borings of the rock for foundations have been made and found to be entirely adequate to support the huge bridge. The center span of the structure, which will be entirely suspension, will be 4200 feet long with towers 750 feet high. The structure will allow a clear channel through the Golden Gate and will be high enough to allow the largest ships afloat to pass under with ease and with plenty of room to spare.

The Government has already given permission to build the bridge and plans are now under way, so that a final hearing will be heard next month, at which the completed drawings will be presented by the engineers.

It is expected to have a bond issue on the ballot in November so that construction can start in January of next year. The engineers estimate that it will require five years to build the bridge.

Bridges, highways, more motor cars and general prosperity, the cause and the result of millions being spent in this western part of the United States is solving the transportation problems of a territory where the distances are great.

When six boys applied for the job of plumber's apprentice, the one who forgot his letters of recommendation got the place.

After committing bigamy for the fourth time, a New Yorker probably is grateful for the protection afforded by the Baumes law.

Think of Solomon's plight if he had undertaken to drive with all those wives, etc., in the back seat.

Farmers are probably wondering what would have happened if Congress had failed to give them "farm relief."

RELIEF FROM CURSE OF CONSTIPATION

A Battle Creek physician says, "Constipation is responsible for more misery than any other cause."

But immediate relief has been found. A tablet called Rexall Orderlies has been discovered. This tablet attracts water from the system into the lazy, dry, evacuating bowel called the colon. The water loosens the dry food waste and causes a gentle, thorough, natural movement without forming a habit or ever increasing the dose.

Stop suffering from constipation. Chew a Rexall Orderlie at night. Next day bright. Get 24 for 25c today at the nearest Rexall Drug Store. Edwards' Drug Store, Mission street, near San Jose avenue. —Adv.

An Oklahoma paper declares that "any young woman of high ideals and moral turpitude can win as never before in enducational history." Anyway, she can usually win a place on the front page, "with art."

POPULAR KPO ARTIST WINS HEART OF DALY CITY GIRL

Miss Jean Lindsay, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clyde W. Lindsay, of Daly City, became the bride of Edmund Evans, the popular and well known KPO radio artist, who is heard with Captain Dobsie during the Shell "Happy Time," the ceremony taking place last Tuesday at 7 P. M.

The bridal party stood under a bell and canopy of sweet peas. The wedding march was played during the ceremony by Mrs. Carl Ballantyne, aunt of the bride. The ceremony was performed by President Arid W. McDonald.

The bride was fashionably gowned in ivory satin, with all over lace, a real lace cap and veil, and carried a shower bouquet of orange blossoms and white rosebuds.

The bridesmaids, Miss Alice Mozel, Miss Mararet Saame, and Miss Mararet Nelson, were tastefully dressed in gowns of pastel shades, of pink, yellow and green. In the path of the bridal party flowers were strewn by Kenneth Lindsay and Janice Bickman. The bridal veil was carried by Maude Lenore Lindsay. The ring bearer was Junior Lindsay. The guest of honor was Captain Dobsie. The best man was Sam Moore, better known as "Sambo" by the Shell Happy Timers.

The Lindsay home was beautifully decorated in a myriad of gladiolus. The color scheme carried out in the decoration of the home and in the refreshments was pink and green.

A large and beautifully decorated cake was the centerpiece of the table decoration.

The wedding reception was held at 550 Joost avenue, and the guests included one hundred and twenty-five persons.

DEATH CLAIMS DR. R. R. CASTLE

Dr. R. R. Castle, a former resident of Daly City, passed away last Friday, July 11, at his home at Bueno Vista avenue. Funeral services were conducted from Lasswell's. The Veteran Firemen of Daly City had charge of the ceremonies.

Mrs. Elsie Cook Larari, a friends of the family, played Dr. Castle's favorite pieces on the organ at the funeral services.

Dr. Castle was born near Galesburg, Illinois, October 11, 1874. He was a descendant of the Revolutionary fathers. His family came to California in 1890, settling near San Jose, and later moving to Healdsburg. He attended the dental department of the College of Physicians and Surgeons, graduating in 1904. In 1905 he married Louise A. Silva, of Healdsburg. Soon after his marriage he opened an office in San Francisco. He was one of the pioneer settlers of Daly City, and even after his change of residence to San Francisco, he took an active part in the activities of his home town. He was a charter member of the Volunteer Fire Department of Daly City. Later he became a member of the Veteran Volunteer Firemen. He leaves to mourn his loss a widow, Louise Castle, two daughters, Clara V. and Martha R., and a brother, Dr. C. C. Castle, of Oakland.

VOLUME 3 FRIDAY, JULY 18, 1930 NUMBER 51

Published in the interests of the People of Daly City and vicinity by H. H. Smith and Employees.

Pat, Mike and Terry joined the army and went to the battle front. In the midst of the bombardment, Pat yelled with pain. "Oh, Mike! They shot me fingers off!"

"Quit yer howlin', ye big cry-baby," said Mike. "Look at good old Terry. They shot his head off, and you don't hear him yellin'."

Won't you phone us for your next supply of Coal—the kind that will assure you high, uniform, clean heat at all times? Thank you!

Papa was deep in a book, when his wife called: "Dan, baby has swallowed the ink! Whatever shall I do?"

"Write with a pencil," was the reply.

"He was a man who had indeed suffered a great deal," says a country paper, in a short obituary notice. "He had been a subscriber to this paper since its first number."

A little fellow left in charge of his tiny brother called out: "Mother, won't you please speak to baby? He's sitting on the flypaper and there's a lot of flies waiting to get on."

We stock wire netting and screen.

Probably Took TNT

Friend: How many runs did they get off you in the first inning?"

Pitcher: "Only six."

"And in the second?"

"Eight."

"And the third?"

"Aw, in the third I blew up and went all to pieces."

The Employer: "Ah, late again! I would like to know if you have ever done anything on time?"

Clerk: "Yes, I purchased a car."

Now is the time to buy your winter Coal.

"How is it that you are back in the city again? I thought you were a farmer."

"You made the same mistake that I did."

"This is just the place for me,"
Said the humorist at the shore,
"For here whene'er I crack a joke
The breakers simply roar."
